May Smith Robbins, who is starring in the musical melo-drama "Little Trixie" is fast gaining recognition as one of the most versatile actresses now before the public. She is said to be one of the greatest dancers in America, and her comedy work is far above the average in its quaint humor and charming artlessness. The play is bright, breezy and funny, and at the same time refined, interesting and pleasing.

Ladies are unanimous in their praise of the little artist May Smith Robbins who will appear Saturday night Dec. 8 at Ferguson's Opera House in her musical melo-drama, "Little Trixie." She is bright, vivacious and full of original humor. She delights and amuses.

Knox District.

Thanksgiving day has come and passed. To some it was no more than any other day, but even speaking a patriotic feeling. School did not dismiss that day, not because there was no patriotic sentiment, but because probably more was learned of the cause of celebrating Thanksgiving day than would have been had the pupils been allowed to stay at home and eat and play. In the afternoon a short program consisting of Thanksgiving pieces, declamations, etc., and the reading of the governor's proclamation, were rendered.

Miss Carrie Morehead of Montgomery City, came down Saturday and remained until Sunday with Mrs. Cunningham.

Mr. Wood died at the county farm last Tuesday and was buried Wednesday. He had been confined to his bed since last February. Life is very sweet but to this man death must have been relief. For some unknown reason he seems to have been cast off by relatives and friends and was left there to suffer and die. All was done by the Superintendent and wife that could be wished until his death. He became paralyzed a few days before dying and died unconscious of suffering.

Little Trixie.

The attraction at the Opera House Dec. 8 commencing at 8 o'clock will be the musical melo-drama "Little Trixie" The Romp Heiress, with May Smith Robbins in the title role. The play tells the story of a little waif who is being defrauded of her rights by a scheming lawyer. Her father, the son of an English lord, had been disinherited for going on the stage. He eventually came to America, where he married a -weet New England maiden against her parents wishes. The storm of adversity swept over the romantic young pair, and they both died leaving "Little Trixie" to the tender mercies of her maddened aunt. The old lord afterwards relearned and sent an old musical manager, in the person of "Socrates Winterpiper" to hunt for his son's orphan child. The old lord died and his youngest son, Sir Archibald, inherits the vast estate and has no desire to give it up. To divert such a dire calamity, he sent a questionable character in the person of James Dawson to bribe the lawyer, Nathan Sharp, and these two worthless plan to kill the little heiress. They are circumvented by Little Trixie's ability to assume different characters, and are at last brought to justice. The play is interspersed with bright operatic choruses and high-class specialties. The company is carefully selected and includes several stars. The musical members are especially good.

Hair Brushes, Tooth Brushes, Fancy Stationery for the holiday trade at the City Drug Store.

Commencing at 8 o'clock the musical melo-drama "Little Trixie" will be presented at the Opera House with May Smith Robbins and her big company of talented artists. The play has a touching story line in a brilliant setting of amusing incidents, startling climaxes and harmonious music. It is a novelty from the fact that it contains all the elements of a melo-drama, combined with the fun, music and specialties of a farce comedy. It is free, however, from all vulgar horse play usually found in the later class of plays, and still has all the boisterous humor and merriment contained in them. The music and specialties are original and up to date. May Smith Robbins the little star of attraction is not only a charming vocalist and phenomenal dancer, but a highly versatile actress, as is proven by the artistic manner in which she personates five widely different characters. The supporting company is strong and includes several notable actors.

Dr. W. H. Lewis, Lawrenceville Va., writes, "I am using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure in my practice among severe cases of indigestion and find it an admirable remedy. Many hundreds of physicians depend upon the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure in stomach troubles. It digests what you eat, and allows you to eat all the good food you need, providing you do not overload your stomach. Gives instant relief and a permanent cure City Drug Store.
